

Democracy is not an efficient form of government, and it would be better for [country] to be governed by a strong leader who does not have to worry about winning elections.