

Religious authorities have the final say in interpreting the country's laws.

An essential characteristic of democracy...